

African American Studies Department sponsors

Save Nubia Project Seminar

The Classical African Civilizations of Ancient Kush & Nubia Under Threat

Saturday, January 26, 2013

10:30 – 1:30 pm

Doors open at 10:00 am / $10 general • free for students with ID

Seminar to support urgent field research in Sudan

✚ The classical African civilizations of ancient Kush and Nubia are in jeopardy of being permanently flooded by a series of dams along the Nile River in northern and central Sudan. Time is limited for SNP director Prof. Manu Ampim and his research team to document the remaining archaeological evidence before the flooding begins. The mission will require $50,000 to complete and help influence UNESCO to begin protection of the sites. Paypal donations are welcomed.

Speakers:

- Dr. Siri Brown – Chair, African American Studies Dept. (Merritt College)
- Prof. Walter Turner, Chair, Social Sciences Dept., (College of Marin)
- Ms. Lori Pottinger – International Rivers, head of Communications and Africa Program
- Prof. Manu Ampim – Director of Save Nubia Project, Professor of History & Africana Studies

Merritt College – Newton/Seale Conference Room

12500 Campus Drive, Oakland, CA

(Campus Drive is off Redwood Road. AC Transit Bus 54. Parking available in lot.)

For additional information contact:

(510) 273-2456

info@savenubia.org www.SaveNubia.org

Don't miss this opportunity to learn about how to support the SAVE NUBIA campaign.

Spread the word that “5,000 years of African history will be lost!”

